

Independent Reading—Response I
25 points

Type your answer to the following question(s) in paragraph format and upload to TurnItIn.com before you leave the library today. Choose those that you find interesting and respond accordingly. Your response should be at least one page double spaced. If you have time for more, write more!

As you begin your independent novel/book—what possible connections do you see between the book and the overarching themes/questions of the course? Eventually, you will be writing an analytical paper about this book. Anything stick out to you right from the get-go? Is your story interesting? Is it confusing or surprising? Do you love it/hate it? Why did you pick this book in the first place? Does it remind you of anything else you've read so far? What do you notice about the writer's style/word choice? Ask a question or two that you'd like the book to answer.

Independent Reading—Response I
25 points

Type your answer to the following question(s) in paragraph format and upload to TurnItIn.com before you leave the library today. Choose those that you find interesting and respond accordingly. Your response should be at least one page double spaced. If you have time for more, write more!

As you begin your independent novel/book—what possible connections do you see between the book and the overarching themes/questions of the course? Eventually, you will be writing an analytical paper about this book. Anything stick out to you right from the get-go? Is your story interesting? Is it confusing or surprising? Do you love it/hate it? Why did you pick this book in the first place? Does it remind you of anything else you've read so far? What do you notice about the writer's style/word choice? Ask a question or two that you'd like the book to answer.